

What is Compounding?

Medication compounding dates back to the origins of the pharmacy and is the art and science of preparing individualized prescription medicines.

Medicine Man Pharmacy's pharmacists have been specially trained to prepare customized medications to meet every family members' special and unique needs, even your pets.

Why would my family need compounding?

There are several reasons why you or a family member might need a specially compounded medication, including to:

- create a different medication strength
- provide a different delivery form
 - a liquid instead of a pill
 - a topical, patch or suppository
- avoid an allergic medication reaction
- improve the taste to ensure compliance
- duplicate a discontinued medication

Is compounding safe?

Compounding is widely throughout the practice of pharmacy, from hospitals to nuclear medicine. Compounded prescriptions must be prescribed by a licensed practitioner and compounded by a licensed pharmacy.

Does my doctor know about compounding?

Prescription compounding is a rapidly growing component of many physicians' offices. Ask your doctor about compounding, or call us, we may be able to refer a physician to you.

What kind of prescriptions can be compounded?

Compounded prescriptions are ideal for any patient requiring unique dosages and/or delivery devices. Compounds can take the form of solutions, suppositories, sprays, oral rinses, lollipops, or even lozenges.

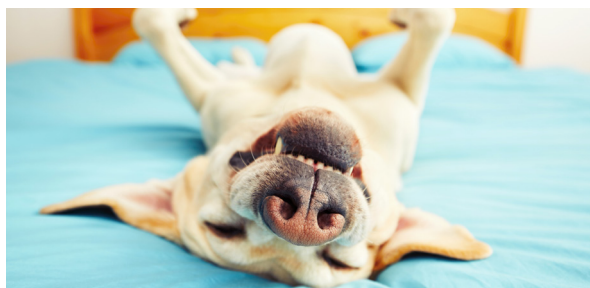

Compounding is commonly used for medical treatments related to:

- Hospice
- Pediatric
- Dental
- Dermatology
- Wound Therapy
- Veterinary
- Managing Chronic Pain
- Neuropathies
- Men's Health
- Gastroenterology
- Podiatry

Insurance

Almost every health plan allows the patient to be reimbursed by sending in claim forms.

Veterinary

Some mass produced medications are simply not fit for your pet. Most commercially available medications are formulated based on averages that may not represent your pet. Your pet may be particular with the form of medication they are willing to take. With a prescription from a veterinarian we can compound your pet's medicine into a variety of dosage forms including:

- Meat-flavored treats
- Custom-flavored liquid
- Topical medications
- Meat Flavored Pastes
- and more!

Since no two pets are alike, the value of compounded medications are that it can be adapted to each individual pet's preferences and dosage needs.

Is it right for you?

It's your body - why not give yourself the option of a customized, individualized medication alternative. Ask your physician, or a Medicine Man Pharmacist, about compounding for any unique medication needs. If you don't currently have a physician, we may be able to recommend one to you.

Chronic Pain Relief

Pain is the most common symptom people report when seeking medical attention.

There are many mass-produced pain relievers on the market, however dosage strengths, forms or other factors can often lead to unwanted side effects, or other medication issues.

Compounding allows us to provide alternate ways to deliver your pain medications, including:

- Topical gels, creams, foams, or sprays
- Flavored lozenges
- Nasal sprays
- Suppositories
- Combining several medications into a single capsule or a topical preparation
- Creating a unique dosage for your specific symptoms, weight, pain tolerance, etc.
